

PRESS RELEASE

Arnaud Surpas appointed president of Fichet Group

Fichet Group announces the appointment of Arnaud Surpas as its president. With a strong background focused on industry, growth generation, and multidisciplinary teams management, he brings valuable strategic expertise to support the group's development.

Graduated from the École des Mines de Saint-Étienne and INSEAD, Arnaud Surpas began his career in consulting before moving into operational roles. He notably headed Sercel (Viridien group), the world leader in geophysical instrumentation, and then Osmos Group. Throughout his career, he has distinguished himself by leading growth projects and mobilizing international teams working in complex and demanding technological environments.

Alongside the shareholders of Fichet Group, Arnaud Surpas aims to revive growth momentum in France and internationally, a strategic objective for this recognized specialist, which employs more than 600 engineers and technicians and manufactures in France at its two industrial sites located in Alsace and Marne.

In a context where the security of goods and people is a major issue, Fichet's solutions meet the highest standards of protection. Banks, sensitive sites, major infrastructure, government agencies, and businesses trust the group's expertise. As a manufacturer first and foremost, Fichet controls the entire value chain, enabling it to offer solutions tailored to evolving threats and the specific needs of its customers and partners.

On taking up his position, Arnaud Surpas said:

"Fichet is a fantastic brand with 200 years of experience, recognized for the quality, reliability, and innovation of its solutions. We will build on these strengths to return to growth, both in France and abroad."
